Few Changes Made Here On I. C. Railroad

Contrary to stories going around town for several weeks, there have only been a few changes in the personnel of the Illinois Central Railroad in Fulton as the result of the division changes and the doing away with the superintendent's office at Jackson, Tenn. The News learned Wednesday morning.

The main change here was that Trainmaster Joe Haynes will now be in charge of the territory from the Fulton yards to Centralia, Ill., instead of between here and Memphis. In his place, two new assistant trainmasters have been sent here. They are W. R. Bowie of Memphis, a former resident of this city, and a Mr. Waters of Waterloo, Iowa.

Local Citizens Join With Union To Increase Minimum Wage To New Level

Many interested citizens have joined members of Local 60, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, in seeking to increase the Federal minimum wage of one dollar an hour. Local 560 is the organization of workers at the local Henry I. Siegel Garment factory in Fulton.

In letters, petitions and telegrams to members of Congress the union workers and many area business and professional people have advised their representatives in Congress of their interest in seeing the federal minimum increased. The action of the local group is part of a national-wide plan among union members to get early action on the proposed increase.

The local union, with upwards of 400 members in the Fulton vicinity are urging their friends to join them in their attempt to call the attention of Congressmen and Senators to the need for an increase in the national minimum wage scale.

Copy of the wire sent to the Kentucky delegation is as follows: To: The Congress of the United States.

A petition for a fair Federal Minimum wage law—

The present federal minimum wage of $1 an hour is insufficient to provide a decent standard of living. A more realistic minimum wage with coverage for some of the 20 million workers now denied protection against low pay or excessive hours of work is long overdue.

$1046 and HR4488 would increase the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour and cover nearly 8 million more workers.

The $1.25 an hour minimum wage would guarantee a minimum standard of living to every worker. It would wipe out sweatshops, the national economy by helping to maintain fuel employment and increase purchasing power. Therefore, we the undersigned citizens of Fulton, Kentucky and South Fulton, Tenn., urge the Congress of the United States to enact during this session a Federal Minimum Wage of $1.25 an hour and to include another 7 1/2 million workers.

A CENTENNIAL FEATURETTE —

Tragedy Of 1930 Will Live Long In Minds Of Citizens

By Ouida Jewell

Many tragedies have struck Fulton over the years, but one which probably will live in the minds of the oldtimers forever is one which took the life of one person and almost caused the death of another, Fulton's beloved police chief.

When Mr. Bailey Huddleston, former sheriff, police chief, postmaster, businessman, and publisher, died back a number of years ago, many Fultonsians were heard to say, "Bailey Huddleston died for the second time today."

It was one day in early June of 1930, that a hobo entered a grocery store in Fulton belonging to Frank Barrett, and stole a box of cigars. Mr. Barrett called Mr.

Huddleston, then chief of police. Mr. Barnett and Mr. Huddleston chased the thief for several blocks, before capturing him.

The hobo, whose name was Springer, was put in the front seat of a car with Mr. Huddleston, while Mr. Barrett sat in the back. Before the police chief could turn the car around to drive to the police station, Springer shot and killed Mr. Barrett. He shot Mr. Huddleston in the leg and hand, then took out a knife and cut Mr. Huddleston's throat, almost severing his head. Springer then escaped.

No one expected Mr. Huddleston to live, but after being given first aid here, he was rushed to Paducah in a special made-up train. Springer was captured a short time later in South Fulton by policeman Walter Boaz and Fire Chief Lee Roberts. It was then learned that the murderer was an escaped convict from the Parchman, Miss., penitentiary.

Mr. Huddleston hovered between life and death for weeks and each day many people from Fulton went to Paducah to give their blood to him. After his recovery, Mr. Huddleston said many times, "I have the blood of over half the people of Fulton in my veins."

After Springer's arrest he was kept in the Fulton jail only a short while, because of the arousing sentiment of the local people. To protect Springer from being lynched, local policemen took him to the county jail at Hickman.

There even, he wasn't safe from the mobs, so he was taken to Paducah.

When his trial came up he was brought to Fulton in a bus filled with State Guards, who surrounded the court house, while the trial was going on.

As soon as the trial was over, and Springer was sentenced to life in prison, he was rushed back to Paducah by the troopers.

The last we heard of Springer, he was still a prisoner at the state sanitarium at LaGrange, Ky.

Mr. Huddleston was formerly part owner of the Huddleston Motor Co., former chief of police, sheriff of Fulton County and owner and editor of a local newspaper.

Have you ever stood atop a tall building and looked over the surroundings and wondered at the magnitude of it all? Well, that's the way I felt this week when I enjoyed a tour through the gigantic Ferry-Morse Seed Company plant now in operation in Fulton.

Earlier this year the press and radio representatives were ushered through the plant, operating under make-shift conditions, and I thought then that the 250,000-foot plant was the most tremendous undertaking I had seen in many a day. This week I again went through the plant, in full operation now, and what I saw staggers my comprehension.

The size of the plant, covering five acres, is fairly matched by the beauty, efficiency, and magnitude of the operation and take it from me all of us ought to start the day off by pinching ourselves to realize that such a wonderful, wonderful industrial family has come to live among us.

All of my life I have been fascinated by the sight of a Ferry-Morse display rack in every retail outlet, large and small, in these United States. I have stopped by those racks many a time in my life-time, intrigued by the colorful little packets, and further fascinated by the thought of picking up a handful of the packets and planting them in the hope that the plants would grow up to look like the sample ingredients on the packet. Now when I see a Ferry-Morse display case I see something entirely different.

I see a tremendous building, employing upwards of 300 people at peak production, with hundreds of efficient devices in every department geared to getting out billions of seeds each year to feed a hungry America and to bring beauty to the lives of millions of people. When the average lay person buys a packet of those seeds, they open the flap, put the seeds into the ground and wait for the seeds to grow. But behind that packet of seeds are people, machinery, good-will, and the most magnificent array of efficiency you can imagine.

No operation at Ferry-Morse is left to the imagination. Growing the seeds, improving the raw product, selling the merchandise, packaging the seeds, shipping them, displaying them, advertising them, marketing them, returning the unsold packets to the plant and hundreds of other functions at the local Ferry-Morse seed plant in Fulton. And what's more there's an air of confidence

New Editor Looks 100 Years Ahead To Vision A Growing Fulton With Accent On Now And When

*Fulton, Kentucky, July 2, 1959 (By Paul Westpheling, great-grandson of Jo and Paul Westpheling, former News Editors)

A hundred years have passed since the two cities of Fulton, Kentucky and South Fulton, Tenn. observed their 100th anniversary. As I look forward to the celebration for our city's two hundredth anniversary I cannot help but be reminded at every turn of the hardships my ancestors endured in those halcyon days to get together an event with hardly more than 600 people joining to make the event a gala one.

Today, in the year 2059, a hundred years from that first celebration in July 1959 we have an inventory of early 100,000 people to draw upon and what's more there are no win cities. While the State Line of Tennessee still runs almost down the middle of the town, it is one town, Fulton, Ky.-Tenn. with a oneness of purpose, of progress, and incentive.

As I look over this busy metropolis with its air-lane highways running out of the city from every direction with its modern, stream-lined system of transportation, with its airport equipped for jet travel, I cannot help but feel a deep sense of respect and admiration for the sincere and staunch citizens whose dreams and plans are our realities of today.

The pages in the bound copies of the Fulton News are brown and brittle with age. It is difficult, ever so difficult, to turn the historical page of that long ago time. But as we flip through the volumes one by one, and a sliver of newspaper tapers here and there I keep thinking that as the pieces of newspaper fall on the floor and form a little mound, so must have been the projects and ideas that piled one upon the other to give us the modern, beautiful Fulton we have today.

Are you interested to know what the pages of our historical heritage tell us as chronicled by my great-grandmother who also managed a 1000-watt radio station, which is the forerunner of our present 1,000,000 watt-TV and radio station, and by my great-grandfather who published the former weekly Fulton County News, the forerunner of our present 36-page Daily News?

Well I'll tell you with the greatest of pride and the sincerest gratitude, and yet these are only a few of the dreams come true for the Fultonians of 1959.

The present swimming pool, covering a full city block, equipped with the latest equipment and conveniences, was once a 100-foot pool, built by volunteer labor and materials purchased by dimes and dollars contributed by enterprising citizens who wanted the best for their community.

Our present City park, extending a mile in every direction on the outskirts of the city, with its beautiful rustic lodge, spacious dining-room, baseball diamond, tennis courts, football stadium, and scenic lake was created with a few dollars raised at a radio auction by the Lion's Club and gradually added to with donations here and there from other civic groups.

The amphitheatre on the banks of the Mississippi River, which annually brings thousands and thousands of tourists through the city to visit in our new 500-room sky-scraper motel and hotel, was only an idea in the minds of my ancestors, a hundred years ago.

The beautiful, sprawling air terminal at Fulton Field was nonexistent, yet a few air-minded individuals envisioned this dream and today as I hear the roar of a Jet Constellation about to land at the field I shudder at the inconvenience of forebearers witnessed in travelling 50 or more miles to Paducah to board an obsolete DC-3.

'Twas a time when a dedicated band of business people rejoiced at the acquisition of a new industry that hired 200 people and when, to save another industry, shoe-shine boys, news boys, widows and pensioners joined merchants in donating to keep the principal industry hiring 450 women. Today, Fulton, with its abundant water supply, strategic transportation facilities, its proximity to the large markets of supply, is a mecca for new industry boasting of an industrial payroll of $100,000,000 a year.

And it must be a source of tremendous satisfaction to the ancestors of some politically-minded former citizens to know that even State Government has come to Fulton. The huge State office building, housing the branch State departments of agriculture, conservation and unemployment insurance has brought more than 400 new families to Fulton.

Our tremendous fire department, our granite-walled city hall, our 12-building school system, our five-story DOCTOR'S HOSPITAL, the new postoffice and mail terminal-house the respective departmental activities of both Kentucky and Tennessee... there are no "twins."

My mind can hardly grasp the difficulties those early citizens must have endured in attempting to accomplish a singleness of purpose with a duplicity of effort.

Indeed, as I close the pages of my beloved Fulton News, and seal therein the hopes and the dreams of your people and mine I am reminded of a deteriorating piece of sheet music I found among my great-grandfather's memoirs. Its title was "I Had A Dream."

Undoubtedly your ancestors and mine played and sang it often. To me, it was not a song... it was a purpose in life.

Our thanks go to them who made those dreams come true.

Don't Die -- Give Yourself

By Rev. J. J. Gallagher,

Assistant at Baltimore Cathedral

Even many sincere, prayerful people have many difficulties with discouragement and depression, with a sense of loneliness and feelings of inferiority. What keeps them from a happy, serene maturity? Simply the fact that they are starving their personalities.

WE DO too many things half-heartedly. We withhold our enthusiasm from life lest we fail or be hurt or disappointed, or because we have not gained the applause we needlessly hanker for. We fail to make real contact with life and with other people. This retreat into a safe but barren shell necessarily starves our emotions and creates a vacuum. Then irrational needs run in.

If we won't have wholesome pleasures we'll begin to seek unwholesome ones. These damaging pleasures are not always of an alcoholic, sexual, or gluttonous nature. They may be the dangerous kind of delight found in self-pity, in isolating ourselves from those we want to punish.

THE POINT is that we starve our personalities by protecting ourselves too cautiously. We should never forget that life will nourish us if we give ourselves bravely to it. If we would only put our hearts into whatever occupies us — our jobs, our prayers, our friends, our hobbies — then we would enrich ourselves with these saner pleasures God wants us to enjoy.

Many people think they will begin to live once they solve their problems. Actually we solve our problems by living. But we must give in order to live; we must lose ourselves if we would find ourselves. Give your heart, give your care, give yourself. Such is the antidote to stagnation and decay.

The two main bodies of water in the Holy Land illustrate this law of life and death. Both seas are fed by the same source, the River Jordan; yet they differ like night and day. The Sea of Galilee is brimming with life and beauty. The Dead Sea is just that: dead. No life can survive its salty waters. How explain the difference?

FOR EACH drop of water the Sea of Galilee gets from the north, it gives up a drop at the south. It lives because it gives. The Dead Sea, however, has no important outlet. It takes but does not give, and so it dies.

These two seas are like an immense footnote on those puzzling words of Jesus Christ: "He who saves his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for My sake will save it."

Dear Sir:

We have just read an article in your paper of June 4th, announcing the cancellation of your special edition so as not to conflict with the historical booklet to be published by the Centennial Committee.

We could not refrain from writing to express our admiration for your unselfish and public spirited act of cooperation. May we offer our sincere congratulations.

In our operations in producing Centennial Celebrations throughout the country, we all too frequently encounter a complete selfish interest on the part of some local newspapers.

Again, our congratulations!

After reading my feature on old hotels in Fulton last week, Mrs. Brown Moss of East State Line called to tell of how she remembered the hotels here when she was a girl.

Mrs. Moss said that a hotel known as the "Greenhouse", was located up on Walnut Street, where Harvey Caldwell's Office Supply store is now. The hotel was owned by Mark Campbell and was painted green.

Across the street, where the Kentucky Hotel is now, was the "Murrell Hotel", which was owned by the Murrells.

Next to this hotel was the "Grand Central", owned by Charlie Knight and his son, Henry. Next door, was the Knight Hotel, also owned by the Knights.

All of the hotels faced the railroad tracks.

Later, the Knight Hotel was torn down and Henry Knight built the Usona Hotel, which was renamed a few years ago and is now called The Kentucky.

Mrs. Moss said that on the corner of West State Line and Church Street was the Childers Hotel, and passenger trains used to stop there at mealtime.

The old Childers Hotel also had offices, which were rented out, and Little Polly Paschall (there were two ladies here at the time by the same name), had a dress shop there.

Miss Paschall lived with her cousins, Mrs. Addie Nolen and Miss Annett Paschall.

Mrs. Moss said that when she was a young girl, the passenger depot was just north of the Usona Hotel.

Mrs. Moss also said that back before her time there was the Planters Hotel, located where Jones Super Market is now. It was destroyed by fire.

We enjoyed seeing Conley Graves on television Sunday evening. The talented pianist starred on the Dinah Shore program. Graves is the younger brother of Mrs. Kellie Lowe and Jack Graves of Fulton. For seven or eight years, Graves was pianist for the Horace Heidt orchestra, but has been out on his own for several years, and has his own ensemble, now. He lives in Hollywood. Graves, a recording star, is a native of Memphis.

One of Western Kentucky's most admired and respected men passed away, last Thursday night. He was one of our very best friends.

Commonwealth Attorney Flavious Martin won the admiration of the people by his brilliance as an attorney and although he made his home in Mayfield he was considered a part of Fulton as his work brought him here so often.

Mr. Martin held his office for a good number of years and the people had nothing but praise for the way he fulfilled his duties.

A man who was recognized throughout the State of Kentucky as an outstanding civil lawyer was Mr. Martin, who had served as Commonwealth Attorney since 1922.

A wiry, little man, the Mayfield attorney had been very active in practice of civil law in Western Kentucky, for almost 50 years. He was a member of the law firm of Martin and Neely, membership being Mr. Martin and Sam Neely, with offices in Mayfield.

He attended school at Cuba, and Western Kentucky College, a denominational school at Mayfield. He was admitted to the Kentucky Bar Association in 1907, and was admitted to practice law in the U. S. Territorial Court for the Indian Territory, to practice law before the Court of Appeals of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and also, to practice law in the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky.

Mr. Martin taught for some time in the common schools of Graves County.

Mr. Martin was elected Commonwealth Attorney and began serving the first Monday in January, 1922 and had held that office since that time.

The Commonwealth Attorney had served as president of the Commonwealth Attorney's Association of Kentucky; had been a member of the Bar Association for a number of years; and served as president of the Bar Association, Commonwealth of Kentucky.

The Mayfield lawyer was chosen a delegate to the National Democratic Convention the last time F. D. Roosevelt was nominated for president. He had been very active in Democratic politics in Western Kentucky for many years, and served as campaign chairman in National and State elections. He was very active in civic organizations.

We extend our sympathy to Mr. Martin's family.

I really had a tough assignment Friday afternoon. The Bennett Homemakers' Centennial Belle chapter was having its style show at the home of Mrs. L. P. Carney and Mrs. Bill Holland asked that I come out and judge the costumes.

There was some very pretty costumes there and it wasn't easy to pick winners. Finally, I selected Mrs. O. C. Linton, who was wearing an original, for first prize. She will model in the big Centennial style show here on July 23. Mrs. Leroy Brown, in a Gone with the Wind style dress, was selected to be in the Union City style show on July 10.

New Dial System For Water Valley

The Southern Bell Telephone Company will put into operation today the "2-5" numbering plan and a new dial exchange in Water Valley, Ky.

A new directory containing all the new telephone numbers has been delivered to all the telephone users in the Water Valley area. It contains complete instructions on how to dial under the new system.

In the past, the telephone subscribers in that area have been connected to the Fulton Exchange. In the future, Mr. Wiley, local manager, said "Water Valley will be an exchange of its own". This will mean that people in Fulton, Hickman, and Cayce will call subscribers in that area, rather than Fulton.

It also means that subscribers in Clinton, wishing to place a long distance call to subscribers in the Water Valley area, will place the call to Water Valley rather than to Fulton.

There are approximately 200 subscribers connected to the new exchange. The exchange name is "FLANDERS 5".

Miss Dorothy Boyd, Sammy Haddad Exchange Marriage Vows On June 17th

The formal parlor of the First Baptist Church provided a beautiful and dignified setting for the marriage of Miss Dorothy Boyd and Sammy Haddad at six o'clock in the evening of Wednesday, the seventeenth of June, nineteen hundred and fifty-nine. The Reverend John D. Laidla officiated using an impressive double ring ceremony. The nuptial vows were exchanged in the presence of relatives and a very few close friends. The mantel was centered with an arrangement of white carnations which was flanked by brass candelabra holding tall white tapers. For her wedding the bride wore a handsome two piece dress of white lace. The jacket featured a small close fitting round collar which was finished with a satin binding. The long sleeves had similar cuffs. Satin covered buttons closed the jacket and finished the cuffs. The shirt was quite slim. The only ornament was a handsome rhinestone pin at the neckline. She wore a shell hat of pearlized braid; the circular veil fell below the eye-line. She carried a lace covered white Bible which was topped with a cluster of gardenias nestled in tulle and tied with satin ribbons. Mrs. Lonnie Ingram was her sister's matron of honor and the only attendant. She wore a two piece suit of champagne pure silk designed along softly tailored lines. Her small hat was of matching feathers. She carried a colonial nosegay of white carnations surrounded with a tulle frill. The groom's mother wore an attractive afternoon dress of black sheer and lace. Her accessories were black and she wore a white carnation corsage. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. The bride's table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth. Centering the table was a five-branch silver candelabra which was encircled with tulle and lilies of the valley. The three tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. John D. Laidla, Miss Flora Jean Haddad, Mrs. Raymond Adams and Mrs. Marguerite Stephens.

Late in the evening the bride and groom left for their wedding trip after which they will make their home in Fulton. For traveling Mrs. Haddad wore a gray pure silk suit with white accessories. She also carried a white, summer top-coat with a natural mink collar. She wore the gardenias from her bridal bouquet.

South Fulton Police Chief Captures Armed Bandit Here

A Carbondale, Ill., man, who was wanted for robbing a service station at Union City last week was captured fifteen minutes later in Fulton by South Fulton Police Chief Elmer Mansfield, who was assisted by John and James Adams.

The hold-up man gave his name as Dallas Chaney, age 20, of Carbondale, and besides admitting the robbery at Union City he told Chief Mansfield that he also robbed a service station last night in Murfreesboro, Ill., and escaped from three policemen. Chaney got $21.00 at Union City and $75 at Murfreesboro.

Chaney, when arrested by Chief Mansfield, had the money he got in the robberies on him, and was armed with a .32 calibre pistol he used in the holdups. It was unloaded.

Chaney told Chief Mansfield that he had planned to kill the service station attendant at Union City Tuesday morning, but decided not to as the attendant was so young.

The attendants were identical models in pastel colors of beige, lilac, yellow and aqua with a fitted bodice, round necklines, full flaring ballerina length skirts encircled at the waist with a cummerbund. They carried bouquets of white pomps nestled in greenery and tied with white satin streamers.

The flower girl, Vicky Lee Ferguson, niece of the groom, wore a full-skirted pink organdy with a large bow in the back. She carried a basket of rose petals.

The best man was John R. Ferguson of Fulton, brother of the groom, Groomsman were Ray Ferguson of Memphis, Alvin Ferguson of Fulton, brothers of the groom, and R. H. Rogers of Troy, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Rogers, mother of the bride, chose a model of blue daron and cotton with white accessories. The groom's mother Mrs. Ferguson wore a blue and white silk with white accessories. Their corsages were of white gardenias.

A reception was held following the ceremony on the lawn of the Rogers' home. An arrangement of lilies and snowballs centered the lace-draped serving table.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. R. H. Rogers, Mrs. Alvin Ferguson, Mrs. John R. Ferguson, Mrs. Roy Nethery Jr., Mrs. Leroy Hastings, Mrs. Ben Faulkner, Mrs. J. T. Brockwell and Miss Emma Lou Calhoun.

Following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip. For traveling, the bride chose a green and white print frock accented with a mint green jacket. Her accessories were white. At her shoulder she pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

On their return the couple will live on Holmes street in South Fulton where the groom is employed by Osburn-Abston, Inc.

Gates-Gordon Wedding Solemnized

Miss Tommie Nell Gates, daughter of Mrs. Joe Gates and the late Mr. Gates, became the bride of Harry Gordon of Fulton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gordon, in a simple ceremony in the study of the First Baptist Church on Wednesday evening, July 17, at six-thirty o'clock. The pastor, Rev. John Laidla officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Corum.

The bride wore a light blue eyelet, featuring a sweetheart neckline and full skirt, with white accessories. A white orchid was pinned at the shoulder and her tiny hat was of white velvet.

Mrs. Corum wore a dress of blue and white polka dot and her corsage was of red carnations.

After a wedding trip to Pensacola, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Gor-

Charles Ferguson

The Church of Christ in Troy was the setting Saturday afternoon, June 13, at 3 when Miss Sallie Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rogers of Troy, became the bride of Charles Clifford Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan A. Ferguson of Fulton.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Hoyt Barnett of Hickman before an altar decked in white gladioli and greenery flanked by two seven branched candelabras which were connected with a cluster of white wedding bells.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Guthrie Luther, vocalist, who sang "Always" and "Because." Recordings of the wedding marches, "Lohengrin" and "Midsummer Night's Dream" were used.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a full-length gown of satin, featuring an overskirt of Chantilly lace. Lace appliques outlined the scalloped neckline. Long satin sleeves came to points over the hand where they were fastened by tiny buttons. A pearl crown held the bridal veil. Her only jewelry were dainty pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

She carried a bridal bouquet consisting of a white orchid nestled in pomps on a white Bible.

Serving as matron of honor and maid of honor were Mrs. Robert Isbell and Miss Elsie Rogers, sisters of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Marshall of Rives and Mrs. Verne Brundige of Fulton were guests in the Tremon Rickman home a few days last week.

Need Volunteers For Pageant Highlighting Centennial Fete

More volunteers are needed for the cast of the "Ken-Tenn-O-Rama" pageant, which will be presented in July as the top feature of the Centennial Celebration.

Urgently needed are people for some of the scenes. The pioneers which meet on Tuesday nights, Civil War people on Thursday and bathing beauties, (no experience needed), Kangaroo Kops, Baseball players and firemen for the Gay 90's scenes, which rehearse on Friday nights.

About 150 more people are needed to fill out the cast to full strength before the huge pageant set can be erected at the Ball Field.

The first week of rehearsals has been completed but, Phil Frable, show director, asks that people interested in playing a role report to any of the following scheduled rehearsals or to call Mrs. Ruby McDade, Cast Committee Chairman.

Monday - Indian Scene

Tuesday - Pioneer People

Thursday - Civil War

Friday - Gay 90's

All the rehearsals will be held in the building on the corner of Main and Washington (The Old Daily Leaders office) starting at 7:30 p. m. each evening.

No particular talent or experience is needed for anyone wishing to participate. All that is necessary is a desire to be a member of the cast of Fulton and South Fulton's big birthday celebration show.

All costumes for the show will be issued to the cast members free of charge, and they will be theirs to keep through the week of the celebration.

NOTEBOOK—
and sincerity among the good people who work for Ferry-Morse that makes buying and planting those seeds something bordering on the divine.

I had the extreme pleasure of having as my guide through the plant one of Fulton's most popular new residents, Charles Paw-lukiewicz, who knows Ferry-Morse in and out. I certainly enjoyed the visit and I want to go back again.

As I left the beautiful new plant I kept thinking of a passage from the delightful book "Seeds of Tomorrow", which tells the story of the Ferry-Morse Seed Company. The passage I remembered is: "The world will never starve for want of wonders; but only for want of wonder." And Ferry-Morse is certainly doing its share to supply that wonderful "wonder" the world needs so badly.

Roma Satterfield Receives Award At Graduation From Playhouse

Miss Roma Satterfield, formerly of Fulton, on June 7, received her Degree in Bachelor of Theater Arts at the Pasadena Playhouse at Pasadena, Calif.

Miss Satterfield, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Satterfield, was surprised at the graduation ceremonies, when she was awarded a Superior Merit Award from the Board of Trustees for her scholastic achievement, dramatic ability and citizenship.

According to Mrs. Satterfield,
"It sorta reminded me of her eighth grade graduation when she received the American Legion Award. Came as a complete surprise to her."

Raymond Burr (Perry Mason of TV) gave the address.

Miss Satterfield's last play at the Playhouse was "Cleopatra", in which she played the part of Cleopatra.

The former Fulton girl was graduated from Fulton High School as valedictorian, attended
